

Consultation with a Specialist of Medicine

Nowhere in the rural areas of America, “Specialist of Medicine” also called as consultants are available. Furthermore, the patients are not aware of the nature of the critical illness, thus the selection of a consultant is an exercise in futility. In our project of “Healthcare in the Rural Areas” the patient is examined by a family and community medicine physician and makes thorough and complete examination. If the diagnosis is not ascertained, consultation is requested from a specialist of medicine. We provide all the details about the patient then an appointment is requested suitable for both the patient and the consultant. A Zoom meeting is arranged, so that the patient is aware of the diagnosis and modalities of treatment. The meeting between the patient and the consultant is handled using our propriety software (www.TelemedVisits.org).